TAROT READING: NICOLE

Nicole's Questions:

I re-connected with my ex-boyfriend a few weeks ago through Facebook. Although the communication was very unstable at first, we managed to meet. We went out on a "date" and talked about what we wanted from each other. We agreed to continue talking and to go out every now and then until we were ready, taking one step at a time. Well, I thought everything was said and done that night but since then I haven't heard from him anymore (no text, no message on Facebook, call, nothing). I don't know what happened! I'm very confused.

My question is, will I hear from him?

Hi Nicole, I'm Carmel-Anne, your tarot reader. Thank you for briefly sharing the background of your situation. This is most helpful when analysing your cards for your question, "Will you hear from your ex?" Based on our initial consultation, we discussed how you would feel if we really got down to the core of what you are wanting to know by asking questions that will give you more meaningful insight as opposed to a simple yes or no answer. In our discussion, you did feel more comfortable with this but still wanted clarity when I asked you what you really wanted; your desired outcome. This led us to evaluating if you really are ready and willing to take it slow and one step at a time with your ex-boyfriend like you both agreed to on your date. Is what you agreed to and talked about on your date, genuinely what you want? That is something to think about.

I also understand that because of the lack of contact he's made with you that you are feeling hurt and confused. With all my heart, I want you to understand and consider how this is a problem for you. I want you to be able to work out what you really want from your ex. How is this a problem for you (after you agreed to it)? Is it because you want to date him again or have a more serious relationship with him? Please be very considerate and honest with yourself so you are able to get to the heart of why you are feeling let down, hurt, alone, sad and upset. Do you really want to stay connected to him even if it's taking things slowly? Do you really want to just take things slow? Based on this information during our initial consultation, we then re-evaluated your question. Based on your underlying wants, we developed another question you felt would better represent what you want to know, "What can I do to romantically reconnect with my ex-boyfriend?"

Investigating your cards, I get a positive energy but with some hiccups and challenges. Overall though, there are some great cards here – and a karmic energy between you both. What captures my attention is that there are only two minor arcana cards (and one court card which represents you and your energy). The tarot deck I use (Rider Waite, Smith) represents the minor arcana cards as the everyday matters/issues and situations, the small things that we face day in and day out. Major arcana cards however, (like you have: the lovers card and the sun) are huge cards representing big and major life lessons, experiences and connections on a deep and/or spiritual level). Moreso, the only minor arcana cards you have are both cups (excluding that court card - the knight of swords), this is another good sign because cups represent relationships, emotions and feelings. Intuitively I sense not to rush your ex and to let him come to terms with his own emotions, wants and feelings.

So let's delve into your reading. The knight of swords (KoS) represents how you feel about your ex. The KoS is moving forward so fast, he's in such a rush and ready to pounce. This does not align with what you agreed to with your ex (taking it slow). Instead, you are rushing forward (in your feelings and way of thinking). The KoS is fast, action orientated and see in the card, the KoS is still galloping forward and is oblivious of the storm that is brewing around him. Is this the approach you are taking, wanting or feeling? That you just want to reconnect with your ex whatever the cost? Traditionally, the KoS does not plan and is determined to reach his goal, he acts very fast/quickly without a great deal of thought. With all due respect, do you think it's possible you placed a bit of pressure on yourself to agree with what your ex wants while not considering your needs? Do you also think you may have genuinely felt that you could take it slow but in reality, you want so much more and faster? Do you think despite what you said, you actually want things to happen faster than you are revealing (even to yourself)?

Perhaps it's time to really understand each other's emotions and meet half way and this will help you reconnect. Because, the way he feels about you comes across beautifully. He sees you as a potential partner in a very pleasant relationship where he can be himself (see the nakedness, representing your true and raw selves, this is also evident in the last card, The Sun). So try not to place too much pressure and speed on him to reconnect. Please don't feel the need to act erratically but don't forget to also respect your needs and wants. The Lovers card is about making decisions with another and in this case, your ex is aware that his decisions will affect you. In your reading, this is a positive card, he sees you as a potential partner but from what he said on the date (and what you both agreed on), take it slowly or tell him what you want and what you are more comfortable with. Meet somewhere reasonably in the middle if you think you can both offer each other what the other needs and wants because in the lovers card, you will also notice they do look disconnected. Reconnect by being clear and honest what you want from each other. Your ex may also consciously know he wants to re-connect and could be very happy in a relationship with you but there are choices to be made. I want to be clear though that your situation, does not come without obstacles. Being honest with yourselves will help you be clear with each other.

Your ex did mention he wanted to take it slow. As you can see the figure in the card sitting at the tree with an offer (cup) being presented to him while there are three other cups in front of him (which he fails to acknowledge). This card is the 4 of Cups (4oC) so to me he is not seeking the attention of other women. Traditionally, this card can be viewed as the need to meditate and rest, so in your case, it could be likely that your ex is not ready for a relationship but wanted to make his presence known because the temptation (of the Lovers card) is there to re-connect with you. This is what mainly poses as an obstacle, he needs time to think, build foundations and stability, time to rest on the idea and think about it and come to terms with his emotions and feelings.

On a brighter note, what brings you together is a beautiful card of two children blissfully playing together with cups that are overflowing with positive feelings, emotions and luscious & beautiful flowers. They are interacting beautifully with a sense of innocence and pure joy. This card indicates a feeling of nostalgia and reminiscing on the good old times. There is progress to re-connect because looking at the 4oC, despite being an obstacle where there was a need to rest on the idea, set foundations and create stability and manifest his desires but moving to the 6, this means growth and things coming together. This is a pleasant combination because you are interacting more thus are delving deeper into the experience of re-connecting. Because of this, your ex can realise and accept his emotions and begin to remember how good things were before. So it seems what helps you to re-connect is the memories of your relationship in the past and how good, emotionally fulfilling and fun it was, but be cautious of the temptation of wanting to return to things exactly as they were in the past. Instead, create a new and stronger future together.

I see no cards of heartbreak but there is no fiery passion and energy of the wands. But there is so much foliage, flowers and sun in these cards and mostly blue sunny skies – this is looking really good for you both in ways of how he feels and what brings you together. You can stay connected in such a beautiful way of (metaphorically) basking naked (baring your true selves under the warmth of the sun) and feeling free and harmonious together – I can't stress not to rush this and let it unfold naturally. I also want to advise you with all my heart, be clear with what you want, but be patient with what your ex wants.

When asking what you can do re-connect with your ex another beautiful and positive card appeared, The Sun. the message in this card centers around a childlike state of being free, naked, innocent and pure – these qualities represent how you can re-connect. You will notice the images of children in the 6oC as well, this really indicates being free spirited and reaching on a young hearted, free and liberated level rather than the force of the KoS (how you feel) by being more your true self (revealed through the naked figures), letting go, being free and basking in the sunshine (and flowers that represent the blossoming re-connection); these are all ways to positively re-connect. So please stay positive, don't push or pressure him or yourself. Instead, both ease your way forward and reveal your true selves and intentions, otherwise he will get lost in the obstacles of the 4oC. I intuitively feel there is a karmic connection between you both as the sun is a major arcana card resembling a big spiritual journey/experience in life.

Based around this investigation of your question and analysis of your tarot cards, I would like to summarise for you Nicole that it seems although you agreed to take things slow, your feelings are there but with a strong sense of rushing forward without being able to see the implications, risks or setbacks. I completely understand this as the heart can be irrational and want what it wants without delay. But please, based around this clarity, work out what you want but please don't act with haste, speed or pressure. Be honest with yourself and your ex. I understand you are confused by his lack of contact but the cards reveal great potential to re-connect. It appears he does have strong (karmic) feelings for you and a strong connection. This may be overwhelming for him too, give him time to rest on the idea of connecting again, let him develop that foundation and stability. Also, don't be afraid to reach out and connect with him rather than just waiting for him to contact you, let your presence be known but I can't stress enough not to rush him, the situation or yourself.

You can re-connect and reminisce on the relationship you had and if this is what you want again. BUT, please don't get too caught up in how things were in the past, because there comes the freedom of a new type of connection with great potential and strength. You can re-connect by taking your time, getting to know each other again, letting things bloom naturally and really thinking about what you want and if you can offer that to each other.

For yourself, I really recommend that you don't rush or push him. Maintain a healthy pace forward because he needs time to evaluate what he wants and how he feels. The feelings and potential are there to re-connect so enjoy getting to know one another again. If you act hastily, it could cause him to turn away from the opportunity of re-connecting. Instead, enjoy yourselves, feel free, innocent and liberated like a child and rather than charging forward, embrace the moment, live in the moment and enjoy yourselves. I also want you to be respectful of what you want. By tapping into your needs rationally and realistically, you can then be more open with yourself and your wants and needs. You are always the decision maker in your life and if you feel that your ex cannot give you what you want or need in a relationship at the continued pace that you would prefer, then you need to make a decision too. There is a level of mutual momentum and commitment here. I completely respect the need for taking things slow but I also tremendously value your needs and if after things have progressed and they are still not at a medium or pace comfortable for you both, then I want you to consider your limits and your boundaries & your needs. If they are continuously not met by your ex then please re-evaluate if this is the relationship for you.
