Hi Maria, thank you for allowing me to read for you, I strive to provide insight but I would really like to focus on you and how to move forward and understand your relationship, the problems you are both facing, what is going on around you and your feelings. In my readings I provide insight, guidance and empowerment rather than simply answering yes or no alone. Since we discussed this, and you agree, I would like to focus this reading around how you can strive towards a healthier/happier relationship with Eduardo. I am sorry I do not focus solely on predictive readings and what will happen, instead I look at how to make things happen. I also believe in free will and that we have the freedom to make our own choices and the future is not set in stone. Instead, I work with tarot by providing options, guidance and awareness to help you progress forward in the best way you choose. I can cover what you may experience in the next three months but please use this as guidance to uplift you, not to get you stuck on one expectation or option. There is so much available to you and what we discuss is not your only option. Please know, you are the driver of your entire life and all the decisions and actions you make. I'm really sorry for the problems you are experiencing in your relationship and I would love to support you and offer you the advice, clarity and support you are seeking. As my client, you are my main priority, however, I will address this question from an honest and neutral emotional state for both you and Eduardo. Now let's start with your reading.

The Queen of Swords (QOS) is sitting on her throne with an authoritative stance, one hand is held up and the other is holding a sword, this represents what is coming into your conscious awareness about your relationship with Eduardo. It is about setting healthy boundaries and her upright sword expresses her boundaries will not be swayed. This card suggests that you need to be more consciously clear about your wants and expectations. It asks you to take on more traits like the QOS and set those healthy boundaries. The QOS is strong and quick minded, intelligent and uses her logic and reason and her brain to solve her problems and to communicate. She is not judgmental or biased. You are becoming consciously aware of the need to face your relationship problems head on, set them straight and are seeking the truth and wanting to listen to Eduardo to get to the heart of the problems – this may be a struggle for you (which I'll get to). You have a desire for honesty and fairness coming into your consciousness but be sure to set those boundaries and to stick to them and release your fears.

This leads me to The Empress, a very lush and fertile card full of foliage and represents what a healthy relationship looks like for you and Eduardo. This traditionally represents a maternal influence, the creation of life, love, nurture and romance. Is this what you seek of your relationship? More romance and nurturing? This card expresses that a happy and thriving relationship for you and Eduardo would be one where there is nurturing, love and that strong feminine energy of caring, affection and loving.

The World indicates these problems are the center of your relationship right now perhaps because you could be feeling that lack of nurturing and caring (The Empress). The world represents the end of a chapter and this too (like the Empress) is a major learning experience. You and Eduardo could bare your true and raw selves because the core of the problems you are experiencing is closing one chapter (overcoming the problems) so you can start a new chapter/journey together. Don't make your problems the center of your relationship and future together, instead tackle them with logic and mental clarity (QOS) so that you can both break the cycle and move towards the relationship you both strive for. The reef surrounding the woman indicates you and Eduardo could be actually going through the same cycle over and over, (these problems in your relationship) so the message here is to learn to overcome this cycle for a new healthy cycle that will promote the type of relationship you want (The Empress). The world card is a positive card and suggests that if you and Eduardo overcome your problems, it will be the beginning of a new chapter/journey.

There is not much interaction between the QOS, The Empress and The world cards, but there is a strong suggestion for more feminine energy, that love and nurturing mixed with the courage of the QOS and the figures are all looking forward, in the present moment and focusing on the now to achieve that conscious awareness, that healthy and thriving relationship and combating the core problems in the relationship. This shows that you and Eduardo are both present in the here and now and in the relationship.

The best way to address the problems is expressed in the 6 Swords reversed. I see the man with the ore as Eduardo, standing up and swiftly taking the initiative to move you both from those troubling waters towards calmer waters (moving away from that repetitive cycle/problems) and moving forwards together. There is lots of water in this card and this resembles cleansing the relationship. The number 6 is also moving away from that conflict and heading towards clearer communication, solving problems and finding harmony. These are just some ways you can address the problems (through clear communication, you could find harmony). The 6 of Swords (reversed) specifically represents, more focus on yourself internally. That is, as emphasised in previous cards, try to speak up about what you want in the relationship, be clear and open with Eduardo, let him know what you want so you can both strive towards this and come to a fair and mutual understanding. Traditionally, this card is telling you that you (personally) may be going through changes and a transition although you are hesitant to get out of your comfort zone and face these challenges. These problems are no longer serving you or the relationship so I recommend that you not sit and wait for the problem to pass but to take action and reflect internally on how to solve this problem in the best way you know, that also feels right for you. This could also improve the outcome of the relationship and help the relationship continue on a happier and lasting note. Also, it appears Eduardo is taking the relationship seriously I see that he is trying to progress forward with you and there is the potential to sail away to a brighter, happier, more stable and calmer future (and relationship).

Over the next 3 months it is likely if you take action to address the problems, there could be a change and transformation in the future (death card) and a break from that cycle of problems (the world) where you can both move forward with new hope and the sun can truly shine on your relationship. Please remember, this will take work, facing challenges and growth as individuals and as a couple. It will require you to consider the advice you have been given here and to take action in all the areas you both see fit. The Knight of Pentacles suggests, if you take on the advice of the 6 swords, you could both be in a more positive position and determine if this relationship is what you both really want so you can then work towards fixing the problems (as a team). If this is the case, the KOP expresses strength to work hard towards solving these problems. This is the hope that the KOP brings, it shows dedication and commitment, moving forward, being goal driven but not in a hurry and also being realistic, rational and logical. All that the KOP's asks of you and Eduardo is to be committed and determined and this could lead to that change and transformation in the relationship (Death card).

So overall, I see a strong presence of your energy in the cards Maria, but I do see that Eduardo wants to move forward and sail into brighter days. He is present in the relationship but your energy is stronger, so be sure to take on those traits of the QOS and move towards what a healthy and thriving relationship looks like and allow him to contribute and open up too so you can achieve that loving, nurturing caring exchange between one another.

The core of the issue is the same cycle repeating over and over resulting in not being able to overcome the problems (feeling stuck and unable to end this chapter) but this can be addressed by spending some time looking within yourself Maria and accept that you are going through a transition and to take action rather than not doing anything; face your fears and follow your dreams. Doing this can promote a happier relationship where the sun can shine, giving you renewed hope and the change and transformation to work hard on the relationship to progress forward with commitment, determination and to achieve the goal of being in each other's lives (if that is what you want).

I must say, there were no cups or wands in your spread. Cups represent relationships, feelings and emotions where wands represent passion, energy and motivation. So you could both put more passion into the relationship, energy to overcome the problems and really express your feelings and get in touch with your emotions from a heartfelt perspective (not just a mental perspective) to keep the relationship alive and this will encourage a continued relationship with Eduardo and help to overcome these problems you are both facing.

I will leave you with this to think about Maria. We have discussed a lot in this reading. I recommend you take it easy, hydrate and have a good night sleep before reading this again. Let my guidance and advice sink in. Please be realistic with your expectations of yourself, Eduardo and the relationship. Also be kind to yourself and while the need for action is here, please do not expect these changes to occur overnight. There are some big issues that can take time. Remember to be rational and realistic.

I wish for you great happiness no matter what choice you make or which path you travel.

Thank you for booking your reading with Soulfully Guided.

Warmly,

Carmel-Anne
